SEPTEMBER'S WINNERS

I guess that was a hard one. Not many people were able to identify the column in the commons.

Here are the only people to submit the correct answer.

Hailee Lanier
Mrs. Conklin
Kalila Rivers
Khloe Napoli
Olivia Valentin

This is a closeup picture of something at DDMS. Do you know where this is? If so, fill in the spaces below and have your teacher put that in Mr. Batista's mailbox. Winners will be announced in the next newspaper. Students and teachers can submit answers.

DDMS FBLA is Heading to Kalahari

BY: VERONIKA MARTIN

This November members from the DDMS FBLA chapter will be headed to Kalahari to represent our school at the Pennsylvania State Leadership Workshop. We will be meeting plenty of other members from many other schools, from all around the state. This workshop is a great opportunity for students because it provides them with helpful information for their competitions and future FBLA endeavors.

So what is FBLA? FBLA (Future Business Leaders of America) is an organization of students all over the U.S that enter business related competitions all while also gaining real life experiences through the work that is being accomplished. It is a great way to connect with your peers, build confidence, and gain leadership skills. FBLA also helps lay down a foundation for those who might want to pursue a career in the business world farther down the line.

Girls Flag Football coming soon to DDMS?

Well, maybe not. However, Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association (PIAA) officially sanctioned Girls Flag Football as a high school sport that schools can sponsor. Currently, there are at least 100 schools that sponsor a team at their school.

Thanks to help of the Philadelphia Eagles, and the Pittsburgh Steelers, this opportunity became a reality in Pennsylvania. The Eagles and Steelers have worked together over the past three flag football seasons to grow the sport at the youth level by providing equipment and resources.

For now, most of the teams are located in the Pittsburgh or Philadelphia area.

How to Succeed in School

Success in School Means More Than Being Smart

Here are a few things you can do to “be smart”

1. Get organized- Have a folder and notebook for each class. Make sure all papers for each class are put in their correct folder. And keep it clean. Don't add unneeded papers to your binder.
2. Write your homework down- In that binder have a place to write down your homework each day. Even if you don't have homework, write no homework.
3. Ask questions- if you don't understand an assignment or what's expected of you, ask the teacher. Don't wait until the homework that night, or the day of the test to say you don't understand something.
4. Bring all your materials to class- It takes no knowledge or ability to have a pencil and your book and notebook for class. Make sure to have your stuff for class.
5. Charge your Chromebook at night- That way you don't have worry about carrying your charger around all day or having a dead Chromebook. Former DDMS student Jake Wolak told me once, he charges his Chromebook at night, and it stays charged all day, even when he uses it a lot during the school day.
6. Review the stuff you learned- Even if your teacher doesn't say to study, review what you learned in each class period. Think about what you did in class that day, and try to remember what you learned or what the topic of the lesson was about.
